Description :

PDF-79496 | Why do scientists have to chase storms and other weather disturbances? It is because they want to learn where storms form the most and how destructive they can get. This way, they can create a system that can detect the intensity of storms and therefore reduce effects on property and populations. In this book, you're going to learn what the scientists have found out.... Chasing Storms and Other Weather Disturbances - Weather for Kids | Children's Earth Sciences Books
